We are here to help!

Pupil Personnel Services (PPS) provides oversight for C-PP's Special Education, Psychological/Counseling services and other related services. This department can help when students are experiencing cognitive, academic, communicative, physical and/or socio-emotional difficulties during the education process.

PPS professionals include certified Social Workers and School Counselors. These highly trained and skilled professionals assist administrators, staff and parents in all six elementary schools, C-PP Middle School, C-PP High School and the High School Learning Center. Our Social Workers and School Counselors collaborate as needed to ensure those students who need support have the best possible combination of district and community services to address their challenges and reduce barriers to success. Regardless of your need, we encourage you to contact your child's school for support.

School Counselors

Certified by the New York State Education Department, our counselors help students develop the academic and social skills necessary to lead successful lives. They observe students in the classroom and at play to assess their knowledge and abilities, help them develop academic and career goals, and provide interventions that address shortcomings. C-PP's School Counselors support our students in the following ways:

- Individual and group counseling
- College and career exploration
- Assistance in crisis situations
- Referrals to school social workers, school psychologists and other professionals when specialized interventions are required for student success in school
